

COLLEGE OF INTENSIVE CARE MEDICINE OF AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND

Communication Skills In The Intensive Care Unit One day course for Intensive Care Trainees

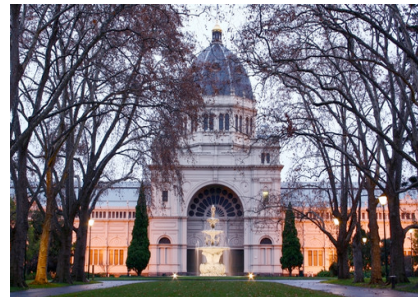

The College has developed a one-day communication course that focuses on equipping you with the skills to manage the challenging situations that you inevitably face when working in intensive care. It is intended that all CICM Trainees will attend this course.

After the success of the first Communications Course we are pleased to announce our next in September 2011 in Melbourne. The CICM Education Officer, A/Prof Charlie Corke has worked closely with the presenters to develop a program that will address some of the scenarios that typically occur in intensive care.

Course Outline

The course will cover such areas as: breaking bad and catastrophic news; end of life treatment choices; open disclosure and advance care planning. The presenters, Michele Stewart and Helen Golding, are experienced course facilitators and counsellors and are familiar with intensive care issues through their work as presenters on the ADAPT Course.

The course will be a blend of demonstration, small group practice and scenarios that will focus on aspects such as the impact of emotion on communication; the effects of trauma and grief on behaviour, active listening and differing communication styles.
